

The "Diary Series" by Terri C Dilly. Framed by Veronique Hammons.

Gallery Veronique first began serving the greater Cincinnati area in 1995. Our founder, Veronique Hammons built our successful operation through passion and hard work. We feature a selection of contemporary and traditional pieces which we feel is unmatched in the area. Our art comes from a variety of sources which include art expos as well as the artists themselves.

Terri C. Dilly is an artist from Atlanta, GA. The Diary Series is Cyanotypes on paper. The words and images represent a creative interpretation of how memories are stored, and can be seen as a kind of abstract diary.

Cyanotype is a process that creates a cyan blue print through exposure to UV light. It is a classic exposure process that has been around since the 1800's, however, Terri Dilling's unique painterly approach transforms a traditional method into a contemporary expression. Dilling paints the cyanotype fluid onto high quality archival papers, similar to painting with ink. The work is exposed outside in the sun and then rinsed in water. After that, she uses a variety of toning methods and multiple exposure layers to achieve visual depth and variation within the medium.

We used the linen mat Crescent #7700 Warm White and Tru Vue Museum Glass.
